My friend, John Holley, is recovering from back surgery. He is home now from a Montgomery hospital and not getting the sympathy he feels he deserves. The doctors sent him home on Tuesday after surgery on Friday. Many of the "friends" sending get-well cards added wisecracks, and members of his family just laugh at him and the cards. We were told of one "friend" who is also a public officeholder, sending John a card and inclosing the paid ticket and a note pointing out how much trouble and expense Holley's illness was to the "friend." Another reportedly added a footnote hoping the surgery helped his back. . . . and his disposition! Well, we must report his back is still sore, and his disposition - well, it ain't any better either. We could mention another point or two but we hate to pick on a sick man; so we close by assuring our readers everything is OK at the restaurant - they haven't seemed to be having any trouble since John Holley went to the hospital. Maybe that is because of the amount of work he did (or didn't do) before he went under the knife. Connell Wins

The Alabama House of Representatives has voted to exempt incumbent officeholders from flak from the Ethics Commission for taking campaign contributions. The dog leash law passed by the city council and advertised last week will be enforced as of April 1. The new dog pound is nearing completion, so dog owners need to be buying good leashes or putting up tight fences, and soon. A few owners have expressed strong opposition to the law and threatened to defy compliance. We hope they limit their defiance to talking because it can only cost money to fight, because they will ultimately have to comply regardless of their opinion. The Elba Tigers wrapped up spring training last week wasted little time in moving when they held their Black and Gold game; and while the game wasn't that great, it surely wasn't bad for a team everyone has already written off for dead! The teams weren't exactly divided up as equally as possible, but both groups of boys really went at it with all they had. We have a lot of rambled 41 yards to paydirt offer taking a nitchout from when they held their Black and Gold game; and while the down the field for a touchyoung players that will have to play important roles next after taking a pitch-out from season, so we may not be ready to pick up Alabama, but we quarterback Mike Amison.
